The first round of workshops for the SCORE project finalized this month with a profitable visit to the beautiful and historical city of Gdansk.

Three intense and useful days went by as the team composed by IHS, Erasmus University Rotterdam, ENoLL (European Network of Living Labs) and NAIDER was able, with the great collaboration of the local partner, Uniwersytet Gdański, to generate a full diagnosis of the agents involved in climate resilience related activities, identify the main stakeholders and prepare the second phase of the project, CO-DESIGN & CO-CREATION, where the potential solutions to the identified hazards start to being piloted.

Looking into the future the projects prepares itself to start these collaboration in all cities so that suitable EBA solutions can be identified and prepared.
