The latest report from the World Economic Forum does not leave Spain in a very good place, according to this organization and after analyzing more than 100 economies from various countries, it ensures that the Spanish state is one of the developed countries with the worst indicators in terms of social inequality. .

The study, which has had more than 140 variables to prepare the final diagnosis, also criticizes the equity of the Spanish educational system by not considering it fair.

These data reveal to us that, unfortunately, economic growth and equality do not always go hand in hand, and that although we are taking steps little by little, we still have a long way to go.
