Posted on 07/05/2015 by Naider

In a recent piece of news published in the newspaper El Mundo, 67% of workers say they are happy with their job. At Naider, we don't think this is enough and that is why we believe it is convenient to share the keys to success in order to be happy that the prestigious Forbes magazine has published.

- 1.- Try to prioritize objectives and ask yourself why and what you are there for.
- 2.- If you are only motivated by earning money, be clear about it but do not obsess. Nerves and rush can play a trick on you.
- 3.- Know your rights as a worker and maintain ties with your colleagues.
- 4.- If you really work on something that you are passionate about, live it every day being aware of how lucky you are.
- 5.- Learn to separate work life from personal life.
- 6.- As much as you like your job, don't be obsessed and be clear that you also have a personal life to attend to.
- 7.- If your goal is to be successful, honesty and professionalism are essential. Do not skimp on effort because professionalism is one of the great values of the labor market.
- 8.- Avoid comparing yourself, it will only make your work worse. Feel unique and stand out for your professionalism, not for having beaten your peers.
- 9.- Self-confidence and confidence.
- 10.- If you want, you can. Do not throw in the towel and be clear that to savor success, you have to have failed.
