tant and non-transferable to us, the examples that we can rescue from other destinations often serve as inspiration. One of the best examples to follow that can be found in Europe is Wilhelmsburg, a district of the city of Hamburg, Germany.

In this place the determination was made to develop a strategic plan that would bring together all the current needs and future in an inclusive way, with the participation and consensus of the citizenry. The starting point was the largest river island in Europe made up of docks, industry and 50,000 people. Based on this strategic plan, multiple projects of regeneration and conversion of degraded spaces were carried out to create an exemplary district.
