The University of the Basque Country has reserved a prominent place in its agenda for the next few days from November 4 to 8 to science, technology and innovation, all within the program called "zientziastea", science week , with the aim of bringing it closer to all those people who are curious to see and learn about everything that surrounds the professionals who work for her at the university.

For this, different stands, talks and activities have been organized by the center's scientists from robotics, through astrology to biomimetics, covering all the areas in which the professionals of the public institution work.

So that nobody has an excuse not to visit zientziastea, this will be carried out in the three capitals of the Basque community; Bilbao, Gasteiz and Donosti in a pleasant and didactic tone suitable for all ages.
