

DIRTY STREAMING: THE CARBON FOOTPRINT OF THE INTERNET

Posted on 10/05/2020 by Naider

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=o9qBtv6l0V0>

Any activity we carry out on the Internet has its environmental footprint, a footprint that grows with more intensive data consumption such as watching series or movies or online gaming. All this requires the support of data centers that consume a large amount of energy that, at the moment, is obtained mainly from fossil fuels.

This BBC video helps us to be more aware of the carbon footprint of our digital consumption, without going any further, of the energy consumption of watching this same video.

