We finished the year immersed in the project ARABA HELBURU, an initiative launched by the Álava Provincial Council to define the challenges of the territory in the face of the new decade that we are beginning. With the social spheres, environmental, economic and governance issues on the table, we are helping to draw the current situation of the territory in different aspects. with participation of the different social, economic, environmental, scientific-technological agents and institutional, it seeks to establish which are the challenges to which it will have to confront the territory as a whole and what is the necessary ambition to improve current diagnosis.

The project has finished its first phase and we have already introduced ourselves to the contest to continue working with the Diputación in the search for the feel like a citizen, business and association in a second phase of this project.
