In the autumn issue we have just published, we address decarbonisation as an opportunity for the multiple challenges of our society, and we share some of the solutions that NAIDER is working on for public and private actors in cities and territories.

In the search for viable transformation tools, in this issue we take a closer look at the concrete instruments we are developing to boost circularity in industrial SMEs, to implement LEZs in the most favourable way, and to build a sustainable urban food system.

In the set of analyses, reflections and documentation of interest, we also include transition keys on other issues of interest for local and territorial development, and a review of the most relevant news on our project in recent months.
