NAIDER had a space to explain our experience as part of the Transformational Innovation Labs subject of the Master's course taught by the CitiesLab chair of the University of Deusto.

NAIDER has had the pleasure of being able to participate in this Master, as well as to meet many of its students with different work experiences and academic knowledge, as well as with diverse backgrounds.

During the session we were able to introduce NAIDER and discuss several of the projects we have recently worked on and those in which we are currently involved. From our particular professional experience we wanted to convey to the participants the importance of governance models. Through what we have experienced in the course of our projects, we have explained which are the keys for the implementation of actions for the transformation and improvement of our territories and cities.

We thank the direction of the Master and those who participated for the opportunity given, and we hope that this experience will consolidate future collaborations.
