

DYING FOR A BISCUIT

Posted on 17/03/2010 by Naider

Our friend and colleague Karmele (International Animal Rescue Veterinary Director) is working hard to rescue the last orangutans from the destruction of the Indonesian rainforest. Panorama programme (BBC) followed their journey from rescue to re-homing.

"But what does the future hold for man's closest relative? Demand for palm oil found in many products sold in British supermarkets is feeding the industry that threatens to wipe out an entire species" (BBC, 2010)

El programa Panorama de la BBC, ha dado durante estos meses una amplia cobertura al problema de la deforestación en Borneo (Indonesia). Con tono acusador hacia la industria alimenticia y dando un toque de atención a la sociedad británica, nos muestran una serie de capítulos que recorren los diferentes prismas de un problema, el cultivo de palma, que amenaza con destruir el último hábitat del orangután.
